Near the top of a hill, affectionately called Duluth, is a famous winding boulevard called the Skyline Drive. The Skyline Drive for 30 miles hugs the rim of a series of hills from one of the largest artificial ski jumps in the country at Fond du Lac, then winds high above the fabled Spirit Island in St. Louis Bay.

The drive goes on above the scenic view of a busy industrial city, above ships unloading at the coal docks and loading at the ore docks. Remnants from glaciers are the dull gray granite boulders that stick out of the landscape everywhere.

Summer session students will tour the Skyline Drive at 3:30 p. m. July 20 during first session and August 1 during the second session.

The Darling Observatory of UMD, 10th Ave. W. and 3rd St., is a high spot of a visit to Duluth. It is open to the public at designated times. The universe seems a lot closer through the observatory's telescope.

At Chester Park is another of Duluth's winter sports centers. Trout fishing here is good, with German brown and Brook trout in abundance.

Back on the Skyline Drive, winding through stands of virgin white pine, the visitor will soon come out above the East side of the city called Lakeside. The Northland Country club golf course is located at the Eastern terminus of the drive.

An improved dirt road winds down along the Seven Bridges road of Lester river, ending up in Lester Park where Skyline Drive joins the Lake Shore drive along the North Shore Route of US61.
